WHERE YOU WORK

Home, on a trading platform the firm provides

How you get there

- 1 Learn to trade 2 to 3 months
Futures, forex (currency trading) or stocks, risk sizing and how margin works, from free material.
- 2 Practise in a free demo 3 to 6 months
Copy the firm's exact rules in a free practice account until you can stay inside them for weeks.
- 3 Read the rule book closely A few days
Daily loss limits, trailing drawdowns, news bans and consistency rules decide most failures.
- 4 Buy one small evaluation 1 to 3 months
Trade it like real money. If you fail, find out which rule you broke before buying another.
- 5 Collect payouts, then decide 1 year or more
A year of steady payouts is a real sign of skill. A few weeks is not.

Pros and cons

- + You risk a fixed fee, not a big account of your own
- + Strict rules force good risk habits
- + Profit share of 80% to 90% if you get paid
- Most buyers never get a payout
- The firm earns mostly from people failing
- Funded accounts are usually simulated, and rules can change

Good to know

Fewer than 1 in 100 reach real money

Topstep says only 0.71% of its Express Funded traders were called up to a live account in 2025. Everyone else stayed in simulation.

The fine print says demo

FTMO (a Czech prop firm) states that all the accounts it provides are demo accounts with fictitious funds, and all trading is simulated. Your share is paid from the firm's own money.

Optional boosts

Risk far less than the rules allow. Trade one product and one setup. Avoid news spikes. Withdraw early and often.
